

Larson & Darby Group - Higher Ed

2009 AIA Northern Illinois Chapter Outstanding Firm of the Year

University of Illinois Chicago
College of Medicine at Rockford

Larson & Darby has been honored to design a wide variety of projects for many of Illinois' leading colleges and universities. From the Remote Library Storage Facility at the University of Illinois – with its' unique climate control range for preserving rare books– to a cutting edge, LEED Silver addition at the University of Illinois Chicago, College of Medicine at Rockford, we have delivered inspired design solutions for students and faculty of today and tomorrow. We are also proud to have been the architect-of-record for national research facilities such as the National Center for Superconductivity (NCSA) at the University of Illinois. We begin by listening to your needs and then use proven design and management approaches to maintain project schedule, cost, quality, and program requirements in an effort to exceed your expectations.
